Best Car Sales Commercial EVER!!!

From Norm Millichamp

Who remembers Ralph Williams? Big time car dealer/salesman? This is the most bizarre commercial I have ever seen and it only aired once because of the extremely vulgar tirade a soon to be ex-employee makes on camera.

During the late 60s, most television programs and commercials were live. There weren't "pre-recorded". There were some obvious problems with this method. No "retakes" and "bloopers" were a regular occurrence. We have to assume he quit right after the commercial aired-- one way or another.

This is no blooper! This guy was just very upset with his boss and told it like he thought it was. What a great job of ad-libbing. He never misses a beat while the camera man is just about to lose it. The commercial got on the air . . . but only once!
